BOUTELLE & BURR, PROPRIETORS.

C. A. BOUTELLE, EDITOR.

All business letters should be addressed to Mr. Burr, and communications intended for publication should be addressed "Editor of Whig and Courier."

TUESDAY, AUGUST 26, 1861.

John Russell Young, ex-Minister to China, arrived at Chicago Saturday evening with material favor. He is on the way from San Francisco to Washington.

Senator McDonald told the Chicago Times that it was very unfortunate that the President had adopted the term "offensive partisans," as it was likely to cause him future annoyance.

Another Dusville massacre seems to be invited by the Richmond State when it remarks that "the people have made up their minds that aggressive, sometimes wanton work is the sort of work that is needed."

Southern California is noted for the thrift and intelligence of the people who have made their homes there. For instance, at Elkhorn there is not a single Democratic vote cast, and Mr. Wile will have to import some men for postmaster.

The reports from Dakota from along the line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway indicate that the estimated yield per acre of the different kinds of grain is as follows: Barley 30 bushels, rye 35 bushels, oats 60 to 70 bushels, wheat 23 bushels, flax 18 to 25 bushels.

The Northwestern Lumber Dealers' Association, with representatives from Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin, met at St. Paul Saturday. Investigation revealed the fact that less lumber has been left over this season than last, and a resolution was passed advancing rates $1 per thousand on all grades.

When District Attorney Dimmelman, on the first of September, assumed the editorial management of the New York Administration organ, the Daily Star, will he resign his Federal office? And if he does not, will the President enforce the offensive partisanship idea, which was declared to apply not only to incumbents of offices but to their successors?

Of the influence of Senator Vourhees in removals and appointments, the Indianapolis Journal, (Rep.) remarks: "He has filled charges of offensive partisanship against every Union soldier who held an important federal office in Indiana. He had them all removed. He has filled every vacancy he so made with men who were not soldiers. Under Senator Vourhees' policy every Union soldier has got to go."

The Commercial's rather long delayed raid on Columbus Brown seems to have had no other effect than to afford the proprietor of the paper an opportunity to give vent to his overgrown feelings. Brown has resumed the office brokerage business at the old stand in Washington, and has been fully forgiven by the First Assistant Postmaster General for the part he performed in getting the Central Lincolnville jail-bird appointed to other. Brown is a pretty mean specimen of a political boss, but he is a son to have more influence with this Administration than the proprietor of the Commercial.

With its usual refreshing frankness, the Herald, finding it inconvenient to pursue further its defense of Lieutenant Muller and its slogan of "The President for releasing the patriotic Democrat, turns up with the old article, waded over, upon the excellency of the independent and the injunctive of the organic journals, says the Boston Journal. If the Herald could perceive the full drift of its remarks, it probably would not republish this able but time-worn and much-eaten article because, since the Herald became a thick-and-thin Cleveland organ, what it has to say about the faults of organic journalism fits in own case completely.

The Boston Herald flies into hysterics and shouts "Bloody Shit!" if anybody recalls any of the great principle for which the war against the rebellion was fought, but it is sufficiently brave-faced to parade in the city of Boston an interview lending the son of Preston S. Brooks, and giving detailed description of the eloquent tones presented to the father by Southern communists as testimonial of their admiration of his cowardly and brutal clubbing of Charles Sumner, while the latter was sitting defenseless in his seat in the United States Congress. We suppose the Herald will soon be proclaiming that any man who fails to honor the "holyday" of Brooks, is a "Bourbon Republican."

The colored voters of Ohio will no doubt make a note of the fact that Gov. Hoadly was largely instrumental in bringing about the pardon of Lieut. Muller, who was serving a year for the deliberate imprisonment of one hundred and thirteen colored voters for no reason other than to keep them away from the polls. Muller is an active factor in the Hoadly campaign and took a prominent part in the convention that renominated him. The Judge who sentenced Muller regretted that the punishment provided by law was wholly inadequate to the enormity of his offence, but in the eyes of Gov. Hoadly, as well as President Cleveland, the implementation of one hundred and thirteen negro voters is so trivial a matter that Muller was not permitted even to serve out his mild sentence of one year. That is the Democratic idea of free suffrage.

The "offensive partisanship" hypocrisy of the Administration was strikingly illustrated in the Ohio Democratic Convention, says the Tribune. A number of Treasury officials and other Government agents were present as Hoadly delegates. As they accomplished the purpose of the Administration in nominating Hoadly, they are now regarded in the line of promotion. Muller, the pardoned Lieutenant of police, who confessed to having locked up 100 colored voters in defiance of law to prevent them from voting last year, was also present in the interest of Hoadly. But there seems to be trouble ahead for the oily Governor. Colonel C. W. Woolsey, the well-known friend of Mr. Tilden, whose name was forged to a position for Muller's release, has publicly denounced Hoadly's political tactics, stating that he regards him "as a dangerous man." He adds further that "seven-eighths of the President's Ohio apolites are discredited by their constituents." As some of the new officials in Cincinnati were almost fresh from the "workhouse" and jail, Mr. Woolsey is probably not far astray. Some of the Democratic newspapers are equally outspoken against "the Administration's interference in Ohio politics."

The Chicago Pension Agency.
After the misleading and humiliating dispatch about "fraternal pensions" at the Chicago Agency has circulated all over the country and furnished text for editorials in all the Democratic papers, including the Boston Herald, a statement appears in the Washington Critic that Congressman Black denies any attack upon Miss Sweet or that he has charged that any funds have been discovered.

The facts of the case are stated by the Inter Ocean as follows: "Miss Sweet has over $30,000 pensioned to pay off his debts, and to draw no pension in calling for the money, and let it lay in the office for a long time. In June a special examiner was given a list of 2,400 persons by Miss Sweet. These had not drawn pension for a period of six months to three years. In her annual report Miss Sweet gives the names of over 500 persons who should be dropped from the rolls, they being either dead or widowed married. At the same time, in Washington, it is announced that it had been discovered that 500 names had been dropped from the rolls in a result of the examiner's inspection. No notice take the names of the roll have yet been received by Miss Sweet."

No payments were made in these cases, but the names remained on the rolls because one had notified the Pension Office of the death or remarriage of the pensioner. This collides another Democratic shade-bubble.

A Democratic Compliment to Mr. Thompson.

Brooklyn Eagle.
Mr. Robert O. Thompson should be content with his New York membership of the Democratic National Committee, with his position on the Custom House, and with his in Poet South. An attempt to become Mr. Manning's successor in the chairmanship of the State Committee might easily lead Mr. Thompson up to the point of a disintegration and dispersion of parties. Even Tweed had too much sense to go to the head of the State Committee. He preferred to go to the bottom of the city treasury.

Tilden Indignant.

A RUMOR THAT HE WILL RESIGN THE ADMINISTRATION. THE NATION'S ADVICE. DIMMELMAN TO CLEVELAND AND MANNING, FOR WHICH REVENGE IS TO BE TAKEN—THE PRESIDENT SHAMED AT GROSVENOR.

A New York despatch says: Rumors of a bad break between Ex-Governor Tilden and the Administration have been for several days. They first gained currency at Saratoga early in the week and now are openly discussed in this city. Local politicians who visited the Spaniard deputes to the Democratic State Committee's secretary, or as plodders drawn there by curiosities, brought the story back, bid were unable to touch for its truthfulness or entire falsehood; all they seemed to know was that there had been a split of some sort. Those naturally expected to know something of the secret, which they endeavored to divulge the questions. Appreciating that through the influence of the administration, they have, however, influence, exerted themselves to another's ruin, but without success, for a reporter to whom they confided their secret, found that Mr. Tilden had not only turned his back upon the Administration, but had actually snubbed both President Cleveland and Secretary Manning. This information was obtained from a thoroughly reliable source of information, who is a close friend of the informants, who is well informed and prominent in both local and state politics. The gentleman said:

The story is an old one by this time, and I am surprised that it has not leaked out before, in that it is on the part of Mr. Tilden's friends to do it. You are no doubt aware, but for weeks I have been open to see that the Ex-Governor and the President were widely at variance and the President's wife at variance with the administration, and that their relations were strained.

HOW THE THOUGHTS ARE.

AN APPOINTMENT OF POSTMASTER TILDEN TO SHOWED HIMSELF DID NOT APPROVE OF TILDEN'S APPROVAL, BUT HE EVENTUALLY RECOMMENDED TO IT AS A NECESSARY CONCESSION TO THE MAGWUMPS, WITH THE UNDERSTANDING THAT NOTHING MORE WOULD BE DONE IN THE SAME DIRECTION.

Mr. Tilden subsequently sought Mr. Dimmelman's advice concerning his successor for Collector of Revenue, and Naval and Naval-Air Service.

Mr. Dimmelman, however, advised him to nominate Mr. Tilden, who had just turned his back upon the Administration, but had actually snubbed both President Cleveland and Secretary Manning. This information was obtained from a thoroughly reliable source of information, who is a close friend of the informants, who is well informed and prominent in both local and state politics.

The gentleman said:

The answer was that he did not seem to regard them otherwise than favorably. At this point the narrative of the story was broken by another gentleman, who, although of the same opinion, was not so well informed in the estimation of Mr. Tilden. He freely joined in the conversation and furnished some points which might otherwise have been overlooked. From the two it was learned that after Mr. Cleveland's departure, Mr. Tilden, to make assurance doubly sure, wrote to Mr. Secretary Manning, asking him to furnish him with the name of a man whom he could trust to carry out his suggestions.

According to this story, neither of the Cleveland officers thus appealed to by their political master made any response. Mr. Tilden afterwards wrote to President Cleveland himself, with the simple request that he would make an appointment. When the selection of Mr. Dimmelman, Beattie and Tilden was announced the old man's indignation knew no bounds. It proved to him that Cleveland, Huntington and Whitney had no regard whatever for him who had been his chief political helper. There was additional evidence of Cleveland's disposition to pander to the Magwumps, when he sent General Grant's funeral, it is to attend General Grant's funeral, it was loudly announced in advance that he contemplated a visit to Greystoke and a conference with Mr. Tilden. Mr. Tilden, however, put him out, on arriving at Yonkers, was met by a messenger from Greystoke, who informed him that Mr. Tilden was indisposed and could not be seen. Thus rebuffed, the President proceeded to Albany. He immediately telegraphed to Mr. Tilden, whom he had left, to call him to a state room, and when he did, but found the Greystoke atmosphere uncomfortably frigid. He made his way to an library with confidence and those endearing words: "Mr. Tilden, I wish you to know that I am the most honest man in the room." Mr. Tilden, however, did not respond.

Feeling the atmosphere of the room too chilling, Mr. Manning sauntered out upon the veranda, followed by Mr. Wood. Once but of service of the ex-Governor, Mr. Wood proceeded to pitch into the hypocrite, who had been a high position-hunting Mr. Tilden's friendship and that without the same influence Cleveland could never have been elected. In like manner he paid his compliments to Mr. Whitney and gently jogged his heart-music regarding the liberal nature of his administration. Mr. Tilden and himself to the cause, his sympathies funds were needed, and as for his own personal affairs in Mr. Cleveland's behalf, they were to be left to him.

THE SAME SHOWS ITS ZZXT.

Manning tried to explain that Cleveland alone was to blame, but did not succeed. Mr. Wood proceeded to add to his discomfiture by telling him that Tilden would henceforth be roundly arrayed against the Administration, saying in conclusion: "In God's name, Mr. Tilden, you will come to your senses, and when you do, we will be glad to meet you, and that is the only way to meet you, and that is by having you do to us what we have done to you."
